UROSET

Home self-test to test the quality of urination.

UROSET is a new unique product (micturition cup) that we are developing for urine quality screening. The customer can test himself easily, in a home environment and without stress. The crucible test can easily distinguish between optimal and problematic urine flow in men caused most often by prostate or urethral stricture. The test is also suitable for women suffering from recurrent urinary tract infections.

Unique selling points:

- Innovative method, simplification of the current diagnostic method (urine flow measurement).
- Strengthening prevention in urology.
- A simple and inexpensive self-test available to the general public, targeting up to 40% of the population.
